Subject: Fireworks resolution

Hello: I've tried to read the report in its entirety but am unsure as to what it actually says.

It appears that the committee has agreed to spend some $150,000 dollars to hold a controlled fireworks display for Dawalli.

I hope I read this wrong.

Fireworks displays for National Holidays are conducted as a recognition of a National Celebration in Canada.

Dawalli is a community event not a National Holiday in Canada. While it maybe a National Holiday in India I'm not sure.

So I hope I miss understood the resolution.

I do however want to point out that the committee I believe have missed the point of all the complaints.

I believe the bulk of the complaints were not the setting off of residential fireworks displays, not at all.

The bulk of the complaints were presented to the committee to address the use of these devices after the 11 pm noise bylaws and the use of fireworks with a range higher and longer than presently allowed for residential use.

It appears and again I read the report quickly but I think you've got it wrong.

Could you please advise me if I'm wrong.

P.S. Just a further point the fireworks display I and others were subjected to were fireworks at midnight and 1 am and beyond, also being directed away from the users property to other properties so as not to effect their own property.

Thank you
Tony Gabriel
